

April 5, 1990

morning and let us get on with Final Reading as quickly as we can.

PRESIDENT: Thank you. Senator Owen Elmer, please.

SENATOR ELMER: Thank you, Mr. President. Only one of these I have a question about and perhaps Senator Chizek might be able to give me...

PRESIDENT: Senator Chizek, please.

SENATOR ELMER: ...a little description about this Chicago-Tokyo thing. Thank you.

PRESIDENT: Senator Chizek, did you wish to say something about that?

SENATOR CHIZEK: Yeah, I am going to give him a little description of the Chicago-Tokyo thing. The reason for that is there has been a corridor opened by Japan, and in the course of my research, one carrier who has applied serves Lincoln and Omaha, and it is the only carrier that has applied who serves...United Airlines is the only carrier that applied that serves Lincoln out of the other two that applied. My research shows that about 6,000, 5,600 people fly from Nebraska to Chicago and Chicago to Tokyo. We are looking at some avenues that have been opened for economic development directly from this state with ag products, et cetera, and what it boils down to is we have a company that supported this state and haven't pulled their flights out of Lincoln, et cetera, and I felt because of the potential economic impact that this could have that I would introduce this resolution and I did. The other routes are like San Francisco, St. Louis. This one is right through the Heartland.

SENATOR ELMER: Thank you, Senator Chizek.

PRESIDENT: Thank you. Senator Schellpeper, please.

SENATOR SCHELLPEPER: Thank you, Mr. President, and members. Would it be possible for each one of these people...these senators that have a resolution just to give one short sentence and then just have one vote on all of them? Would that okay with Senator Lynch, or did you want to just go on to just have...
